Short Description

Pangasius Catfish/Iridescent Shark

Description

The Small Blue Strip Pangasius, also known as the Iridescent Shark (Pangasianodon hypophthalmus), is a sleek and fast-growing freshwater species with a soft metallic sheen and subtle bluish stripes along the body. These active swimmers are known for their peaceful nature.

Native to the Mekong and Chao Phraya river basins in Southeast Asia, the Blue Strip Pangasius thrives in warm, oxygen-rich water.

Feeding is easy—they accept pellets, flakes, frozen food and vegetables.
