Description

The African Butterfly Fish (Pantodon buchholzi) is a unique, surface-dwelling species native to the calm, vegetated waters of West and Central Africa. With wing-like pectoral fins and upward-facing eyes, it's built for ambushing insects and small prey from the surface. This peaceful oddball grows up to 4 inches and should be housed in a well-covered aquarium, as it’s known to jump. Best suited with peaceful tankmates.

Availability is subject to change, as this species is imported and highly seasonal in South Africa. Due to limited import opportunities and seasonal fluctuations, availability may vary from time to time.
